

WHO AND WHERE IS HARRY PLUMWICK?

Weird Tale of Murder and Robbery Told by Mrs. Sievert, Which Gives Very Startling Facts, But No Verification—A Wonderful Story Is Related.

If Harry Plumwick is dead where are his mortal remains? and if he is not dead why do his friends insist that he is? On Saturday last Mrs. Frank Sievert, who lives in Monterey, behind Kammer's meat market, gave a notice to the Recorder of the death of Harry Plumwick. According to that notice as it appeared in the Recorder on Sunday morning, he had died at ten o'clock on Saturday morning as the result of a blow on the head in a hold up on Milton avenue about three weeks ago.

Further details were given at that time to the effect that a Rev. Kath of Washington would officiate at the funeral services, which were to be held at the home of the deceased in Washington, D. C., and his death occurred at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sievert, with whom he had been living for some time and had left a wife and two children.

CANNOT BE SUBSTANTIATED

Since that time a fruitless effort has been made to substantiate the details in the matter. Mrs. Sievert, on being questioned, promptly denied two points of the above account. The remains had not, she said, been sent to Washington, and the death did not occur at her home. Moreover the wife, both children and Rev. Kath are all in this city, the latter having arrived from Washington to confer with the sick man, but arriving too late to see him alive.

Just when the burial would take place she could not say, but thought that the time had been set for today.

Her entire story is thrilling in the extreme, and while in one or two particulars the details are scanty, she easily explains that by saying that Mrs. Plumwick is so hysterical, and shrieks and screams so uncontrollably that it would be a hard hearted person who could ask a woman in such sorrow to talk of the cause of her grief.

TELLS SENSATIONAL STORY

To tell the story from the beginning, just as Mrs. Frank Sievert relates it, Mr. Plumwick came here from Washington, D. C., some six or seven months ago. He was a lawyer, and came to settle some matters regarding a will in which Mrs. Sievert is one of the heirs. His home was in Washington, and while here he at first stopped with her, but later moved into a house on Milton avenue about four blocks beyond the end of the car tracks. His wife came here at intervals, and during the time, the two children, one of them adopted, were also here.

On a night some three weeks ago, when the wife and the two children were all here, the adopted child was taken sick. Plumwick started for a doctor. Time passed and he did not return, and his wife in fear lest some injury had befallen him, went to a near neighbor, Smith or Schmitt, Mrs. Sievert thought the name was, and asked him to go in search of Plumwick. Smith, if that is his name, started out from the house, and had barely gone a block when he encountered the prostrate body of his neighbor lying across the path.

IN POOL OF BLOOD

Under Plumwick's chin there was a horrible gash, from which the blood was flowing freely. His head was laid open from another wound, evidently from a heavy weapon, and there was a deep cut on the side of his face. A skin cut ran across his finger on the hand where he customarily wore a diamond ring. The ring, as well as thirty-five dollars in cash which he had on his person, were missing. Plumwick was taken to the house, but whether or not he had any medical care, she could not say.

When the injured man regained consciousness, he said that as he passed some dense shrubbery in a particularly dark part of the street two men jumped out upon him, and shortly after he lost consciousness. Detectives were put immediately upon the case, although nothing was said to the local police, and some days later the names of the assailants were learned. Both of them residing in this city. According to the narrative one of the alleged highwaymen entered a jewelry store in Alton, Illinois, and the detectives followed him. The suspect offered a diamond ring for sale which bore within it the name of Harry Plumwick. On being confronted with the proof of his guilt, the man confessed his part, and on the ground that it was not fair that he should suffer alone, told the name of his accomplice.

WHO WERE THEY?

At this point the narrative grows weak for nothing further is told of the work of the detectives; whether they arrested the men or let them go, or from what city they came, but it must be remembered that Mrs. Sievert claims that she learned all of this from Mrs. Plumwick, who was naturally greatly distressed while telling even so little.

Last Saturday morning death came, and although for some strange reason Mrs. Sievert had not been informed of the date of the funeral, she said last evening that she expected it to take place today. This morning she said that she did not know when the services would be held, but that she would go out to the home of the deceased this afternoon and would then be able to give more complete details.

WHERE IS THE HOUSE?

Now comes the peculiar part of the matter. Careful inquiry has been made at practically every house on Milton Avenue, from the end of the car line for at least a mile out, and no one has ever heard of Plumwick, of Smith, of a dead man within the last week, or of a hold-up within the last month. Mrs. Sievert insists that the dead man lived in a white house on the left hand side of the street, about four blocks beyond the tracks, but none such could be found.

Besides that, no undertaker in this city has been called upon to lay out the dead man, no notice of the death has come to Health Officer Edden, and no permit for burial has been issued at either cemetery in this city, and that, too, after four days have passed since the death. Dr. Edden says that it would be impossible for the burial to take place legally without his knowledge, and even more difficult for the remains to be sent from the city, without a permit signed by himself.

Any knowledge whatever of the matter either at the time of the alleged hold-up, or at any time since, is disclaimed by the local police. They say that it has never been reported to them direct, or has it come to them in any roundabout way, except on the occasion of the notice in Sunday's daily.

MEN IN DISGUISE

In the course of the inquiries made of Milton Avenue residents in the hope of discovering the whereabouts of Mr. Plumwick or his family, the fact was brought out that Mrs. Summers, who lives on that street, believes that she met the man who held up Plumwick on that night. She was making a call one evening about three weeks ago, and on the way passed two persons whom she at first thought to be women, but later she came to the conclusion that they were men in disguise.

They were both of large build, and wore three cornered shawls thrown over their faces in such a way as to partially conceal them. Her suspicions were confirmed in her mind when she read the notice of the death of Plumwick from a blow received in a hold-up on that same street where she saw the men in women's clothes.

WHO CAN SOLVE IT?

No one has been found who can explain the mysterious disappearance of Mr. Plumwick, if indeed he was ever here. How he could have lived and died on Milton Avenue without the knowledge of anyone, is hard enough to explain, but granting that he did live in this city, on some other street, how could he have died and buried without the knowledge of the health officer? That he should have died four days ago and is still unburied is preposterous.

GREAT RECORD KEEPER OF MACCABEES QUILTS

Expansionists Win the Day and Force Thomas Watson to Resign His Office.

Port Huron, Mich., Oct. 22.—The announcement that Thomas Watson has resigned as the great record keeper of the great camp, Modern Maccabees of the World, has created great surprise all over Michigan and in other states where this order is branching out.

The contest that has existed in the ranks of the Michigan organization between Maj. N. S. Boynton and Mr. Watson and also with the supreme tent of the Maccabees has given notoriety to the order throughout the United States.

Mr. Watson in his letter of resignation states that the harmony which has often been spoken of is a sham, and says that owing to personal differences and disagreements he thinks it better to resign, the resignation to take effect January 1, 1903.

Maj. Boynton's freeze-out from the supreme tent by D. P. Markey, supreme commander, and others who deposed the major as supreme record keeper and then as supreme adviser, started the ball rolling, and since then the major has been contending to get his Michigan order outside the state and has succeeded. The resignation of Watson leaves the major a clear field.

ADVICE TO ALL THE INSPECTORS

Supreme Court Renders Plain Law as to the Votes and Marked Ballots.

(Special To The Gazette.)
Madison, Wis., Oct. 22.—Inspectors and canvassers at the coming election can get an important guide in an important decision handed down by the Supreme Court today. In the case of the state on relation of Horace Blodgett against P. H. Eagan, assessor of the town of Brookfield, Waukesha county, in which an order is entered ousting the latter from his office and awarding it to Blodgett.

Last April Blodgett and Eagan were candidates for assessor of the town. Eagan received 153 undisputed ballots and Blodgett 152. There were two ballots on which Eagan's name was written opposite the printed name of Eagan, but the latter was not crossed out. The canvassers throw out both ballots as invalid.

The lower court found that it was the intention of the voters who cast these ballots to vote for Blodgett and held that under the law the ballots were void.

This decision is reversed by the Supreme court. Justice Bardeen, who wrote the decision saying: "Ballots which fairly and reasonably indicate the real intention of the elector are to be counted as cast, unless do so runs counter to some statutory enactment. The voter shall not be disfranchised because of mere mistake, but his intention shall prevail and the printed name treated as though it had been erased."

WORK RESUMED IN COAL MINES

Strikers Who Have Been Idle Since last May Are Once More at Work.

A PEACEFUL SCENE

Union and Non-Union Men Join in Great Rush to Supply the Nation with Fuel.

(Special By Scripps-McLae.)
Wilkesbarre, Oct. 22.—The first of the strikers who have been idle since last May returned to work this morning. They are the steam men, engineers and firemen pumpmen, blacksmiths, timber men, fire bosses and others whose work is to keep the mines clear. Many of the steam men who reported for work were turned away by the foremen, who said their places were filled.

Union and Non-Union men worked side by side with no friction. The production of coal will now go on with a rush. Before Saturday night it is thought that four hundred tons will have left the mines for the markets and next week over a million tons will be put out.

OHIO MUNICIPAL CODE PASSES LEGISLATURE

New System of Government Is Adopted by the Lawmakers of the Buckeye State.

Columbus, O., Oct. 22.—The legislature has adopted a municipal code for Ohio, which provides an entire new system of government for seventy-two municipalities. The vote in the senate was 21 to 12 and in the house 55 to 35.

The legislature was called in special session Aug. 25 by Governor Nash to adopt a new code, which was made necessary by the fact that the supreme court had declared existing forms of government unconstitutional on the ground that they came under the head of special legislation. After wrestling with the problem for nine weeks the Republican majority decided to take Cincinnati's board plan of government as a model. All the Democratic members except two voted against the code.

The new code becomes effective next spring, when all present officials, regardless of the terms for which they were elected, will retire by legislative enactment.

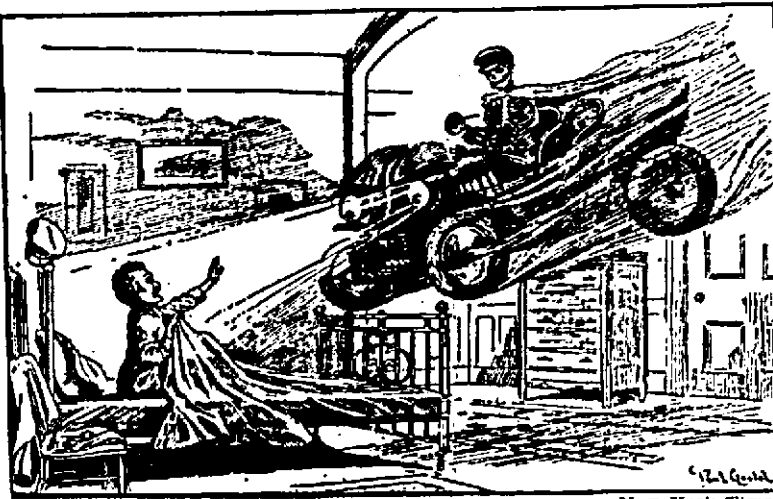

FEDERAL JUDGE SCORES ILLINOIS COUNTY JAILS

Declares Sentence to Penitentiary Is Preferable and More Humane to Wrongs.

Peoria, Ill., Oct. 22.—Judge J. Otis Humphrey of the United States court has condemned the jails at Illinois. In no uncertain terms he scored the county jails and stated that hereafter in every case where it possibly can be avoided he will refuse to give a man a long jail sentence, preferring the sorrowful, but, to his mind, more humane alternative of branding the man as a convict. Time after time, he said, he had sentenced a man to ten months or a year in jail, and at the expiration of such sentence the prisoner was a physical wreck, and often went back to his family to die. Lack of occupation, bad sanitary conditions and lack of proper food, he declared, undermined the strongest constitution.

ALL HONOR TO JOHN C. SPOONER GIVEN BY LAST NIGHT'S AUDIENCE

Janesville Gives the Mighty Man a Royal Welcome—
A Masterly Address Given—Eloquent, Logical and Forceful. He Held the Closest Attention of an Enthusiastic Audience.

It was Spooner night. Banas played for Spooner, youthful soldiers marched for Spooner and interested friends and partisans crowded about Spooner at the Myers House to show their great admiration for the man they loved so dearly.

It was a most enthusiastic meeting. From the time the senator stepped to the front of the platform and acknowledged the applause of the audience to his closing remarks he held the attention of the audience as no other man could have held it. Even the old soldier who had been fighting his battles over again with Sir John Barleycorn, realized that he was in the presence of a great man and rose to the occasion by frequent approving remarks at the opening.

At half past six the doors of the Opera House opened. By seven the great auditorium showed but few seats vacant and by half past the entire first floor was crowded and the balcony filling up. When the senator was introduced by the Hon. Ogden H. Fethers the whole house even to the gallery was one sea of expectant humanity who re-echoed the sentiments of those who could not come. It was a nuptial and exultant crowd.

Senator Arrives
Senator Spooner arrived in Janesville on the afternoon train, he was met at the depot by a few friends and escorted to the Fethers home. Charles L. Valentine, of Janesville; James Britton of Beloit and Alex. White, of Evansville, nominees for the legislature, dined with the Senator at six and at a quarter of seven the Cadet Corps of Christ church arrived at the house and escorted him to the Myers House. Thirty brave little soldier boys with the tread of veterans they paid honor to the state's greatest man.

At the Myers House the office was filled with men awaiting him. There was no regular reception; just an informal gathering. Old friends of the Senator came up to him, grasped his hand and had a word of greeting. The Senator knew all of his old friends and had a word of recognition for each. He never forgot a name that he had heard before and many a man walked away with a warm hand-grasp still tingling his finger tips to the Opera House to hear his speak.

Still Hoarse
While the Senator was hoarse his voice was distinctly heard all over the house and as he progressed in his talking he warmed up to his work, and he fairly thundered forth his statements in a voice that brooked no misunderstanding. The audience was not entirely men. Many ladies were present and were seated not only on the stage but in the boxes. Supporters of the governor and those opposed to him all joined in paying him homage. It was a republican gathering. No party factional fights had a part. All differences of opinion were forgotten in the one great event—Senator Spooner's address.

His Address
"Look above the fog of state politics and see the flag," was the keynote of the Senator's address. "Turn your faces against the enemy. Instead of glowering at each other." Throughout his speech the importance of national issues was emphasized rather than those of the state and it was only in his closing sentences that he touched upon the gubernatorial campaign now on. He confessed his reticence on the matters which have attracted such unduly he considered it, wide-spread attention in Wisconsin, and urged voters to look beyond local disturbances to the great needs of the nation.

Praised Presidents
At every possible point in his talk the Senator referred to both the late President McKinley and the present incumbent of the executive seat of the nation, in the most glowing terms. And equally after he berated the democratic party as a drag on the movements toward reform, enlightenment and progress which these two leaders inaugurated.

His voice was far less strained to listen to than many had expected, and the effort which it required him to complete the address was not apparent. It was undeniable, however, that the trip had proved trying on his voice and that it is a struggle for him to go on.

Concealed His Discomfort
As he closed his remarks, the Senator turned to some one near him with the words, "It was awfully hard," referring to the difficulty he had experienced in addressing the audience. But those who heard him and were also present at the last campaign speech on the same platform can testify that he showed much better control of his vocal organs.

Introduced By Fethers
When the applause greeting the man in whose honor the great assembly had gathered died away, Hon. Ogden H. Fethers rose and presented him to the people.

"I return most grateful thanks for the honor of presiding tonight. John C. Spooner, the master spirit of the United States Senate, needs no introduction to the people of Rock county. For eighteen years we have followed his leadership and every hour we have honored and loved him because he has so richly deserved."

"So, in your name, and in the name of the fifty thousand people of grand old Rock, I bid him welcome. By him will be discussed the principles of the party of progress and the rights of men; the party of Lincoln, of Grant, of McKinley, of Roosevelt."

Here Mr. Fethers' voice was drowned in a storm of applause which swept through the building. He paused until quiet was restored and then amid even greater cheers he completed his sentence:
"and of Spooner."
"Senator, every heart in this vast audience throbs with exultant joy that you are with us once again and we wait with eager ears to hear your message."

Slight Disturbance
As the Senator rose in acknowledgment of Mr. Fethers introduction an old soldier in the front row of the lower part of the house and whose feelings could not be suppressed, rose to his feet with the words that he was the only surviving member of the First Cavalry and that he was there to hear Senator Spooner.

After courteously waiting for his interrupter to stop speaking Senator Spooner began with the words:
"If I were able,—" "You are," cried out the veteran who had greeted the speaker.

Acknowledging the compliment with a graceful bow the speaker went on to take up his address. After referring in the highest terms to his old friend who had introduced him to the audience that evening.

Republican Always
When he had in a few words proclaimed himself to be a republican first, last and always, he assailed the democratic party as backward, and a hindrance to advancement. "They sit on the coat-tails of progress and yell, 'whoa.'"

Coal Situation
His words were next directed toward the coal strike. This gave him his first opportunity to eulogize President Roosevelt as the man who brought the strike to an end, and this expression was greeted with the heartiest applause.

Personally, the Senator said, he had been strongly in sympathy with the men in the strike, rather than with the operators.

Again Interrupted
During this part of the address the old soldier in the front of the house became troublesome in the extreme by his frequent interruptions. Officer Hogan came to the front to remove the man from the house. The speaker, however, interceded in behalf of the First Cavalryman, with the words: "He'll keep still, I guess," and the veteran was allowed to hear the rest of the address that he had come to hear.

Only a republican administration could have supported a coal strike, said the Senator, resuming his theme, and it was a president like Roosevelt who was able to put it to an end.

"He can ride a bucking bronco, he can shoot a mountain lion, and he can bust a strike," he said, and the sentiment was met by laughter and applause.

Sixteen To One
Bryan's attempts to depreciate the value of currency were next referred to and after that the tariff problem as the democratic party offered to deal with it. "The only business which profited in those days," said the speaker facetiously, "was the soup house."

William McKinley was the next recipient of the encomiums of the Senator. Prosperity came almost on the jump under his administration, and wherever there was a dollar laid away, it came leaping out into the light looking for a job. And it found the people meeting it more than half way with a job.

Change Inadvisable
"And yet, after all this that the Republican party has done it is proposed to substitute in the House of Representatives, a Democratic majority for the Republican. The speaker then referred to the Kansas City platform and the 16 to 1 tenet, as an example of what the Democrats might be expected to do, although what they would propose next the Senator was paired of predicting.

A few brief statistics were then cited to indicate that nothing which the Democrats had predicted had materialized, while everything had come about which they had said would not.

In The War
After this Senator Spooner recurred again, as he did frequently during the address, to the services of McKinley this time touching on the latter's war services. To William McKinley was attributed the credit of strengthening the seat of the United States from the foot to the head of the international table. The president was slow in advocating warfare, and held off as long as possible, but when the hour came when armed intervention was unavoidable, the nation was prepared.

During all this time when President McKinley was doing his best to advance the standard of the United States in the Philippines, the democrats, so the Senator said, were keeping up a continuous fire in the rear. The almost seditious utterances of that party as published in Spanish in the insurrectionary islands were blamed for Aguinaldo's continued resistance, in the hope that he and his followers might gain their liberty if the democrats were successful in the election.

Endorsed Cooper
H. A. Cooper, the congressional representative of this district, was referred to as one of the foremost in the advocacy of remedial measures to put the islands on a firm, and as far as possible, a self-supporting basis. Later on the Senator called upon all republicans to see that Cooper was returned to congress.

Chinese difficulties, and the part of the United States in settling them, were next taken up. In this subject the Senator was given yet another opportunity to surround the name of our lately assassinated president with tributes of high praise and respect. And at the same time the speaker made further charges against the democratic party. Through all the efforts to advance the crusade of the musket and the school book in the islands the democrats criticized, and slandered the men who were doing the good work.

Was Wrathful
"It made me mad," said the Senator sentimentally, "and you may have discovered that I am mad still."

"Why not study the remedy?" shouted someone in the house.

"We have," responded the speaker, "and we have had to find out and apply it for ourselves, in spite of the democrats. The only way to solve the question is to turn the rascals out and elect a straight republican house."

"I could go on all night speaking about the good things the republican party has done since '96, and it wouldn't take a minute to tell of the good things the democrats have done," he said.

Dealt With Trusts
In response to a request from someone in the audience Senator Spooner took up the trust question, and after a brief definition of a trust, he referred to President Roosevelt's handling of the beef and coal trusts. The former the president had taken by the neck and strangled, while the latter would soon receive like treatment.

"In my opinion these corporations are natural as the result of competition, and are inevitable. Capital, great and small, has combined since the world began, just as has labor, both of them in order to protect their product."

"There is benefit, good and danger combined in so complex a mechanism as that which has arisen under the industrial questions. We must be able to meet and remedy the difficulty without smashing the entire works. We will repair the crystal without spoiling the watch. Our country will never submit to being ruled by a corporation, but if a man waits down before the footlights and claims that he can put an end to the trusts, you can rely on it that he is either a quack or is trying to deceive."

"We have a terrible proposition to face in trying to compete with the foreign product, and God pity the day, if it ever comes, when our women and children are obliged to labor in the factories and workshops as I have seen in some corners of the world."

Not A Prohibitive Tariff
Senator Spooner said that he did not advocate a prohibitive tariff. Only a moderate duty is demanded by the condition, a duty which will cover the difference between labor cost in this country and in Europe. That would always leave an avenue open for independent capital to enter into competition. "If you will give us time we will find a remedy for this, but it will not be a democratic remedy. We will try to doctor the case without killing the patient." The senator personally advocated a permanent tariff commission which would be able to take its time about making an intelligent and satisfactory revision.

State Questions
An appeal to the people to protect President Roosevelt in the coming election brought the address down to the immediate subject of state politics. The hands of the executive of the nation would be shackled if a democratic house were to be elected. In both parties this season there has been a tendency to think more of leaders than of issues. At this time we should set our faces firmly against the enemy, instead of glowering at one another. Principles are everything, men are nothing.

It is a narrow view which speaks of the republican party of the state, rather than the country said the speaker, and his remarks on this point became more impassioned than at any time before in his address. His appeal was that the republican party sink its local feelings in its pride in the country as a whole, to look above the fog and darkness of local conditions, and see the flag floating over the nation.

Vote Straight Ticket
A republican ticket should be voted in 1904 with Theodore Roosevelt at the head, and a state republican ticket in November, 1902, with Governor Robert M. La Follette at its head. "I have always found it easy to vote a straight republican ticket, nominated by a republican convention," he concluded.

With a few apologetic remarks regarding his physical condition, and some brief words of thanks to the audience for the attention they had given to him and to the voters of Rock county, for the support they had always given him, Senator Spooner closed his address.

DANCE FOLLOWS A GOOD PROGRAM

WOMEN'S UNION LABEL LEAGUE ENTERTAINS ITS FRIENDS.

EVENING ENJOYABLY SPENT

Entertainment Was a Complimentary One, and Many Shared Its Pleasures.

Members of the Woman's Union Label League entertained their friends in a hospitable manner last evening at Assembly hall, the time being spent most delightfully by a large company of ladies, gentlemen and children. The early part of the evening was devoted to an excellent musical and literary program, Mrs. T. J. McKelvey, president of the League, presiding.

After the singing of the opening ode, the guests were pleasantly welcomed in an opening address by H. L. Baker. Addresses were also given by the Rev. Richard M. Vaughan, pastor of the Baptist church, and Rev. W. W. Warner, pastor of the First M. E. church. Both gentlemen commended the object of the League and of all Federated Trades Unions heartily and their cordial words of encouragement found favor with the audience. Rev. Warner urged especially upon the women their duty in voting on school questions.

Mrs. E. H. Winney read an excellent article "How Women Can Aid Trades Unions" in pleasing manner and Mrs. Gus Baker read an original paper "An Appeal to Union Men's Wives," her sentiments meeting with the hearty approval of her hearers. One of the most enjoyable numbers on the program was a recitation, "Seven Times Two," prettily given by Miss Edna Winney. Miss Ella Funk also pleased the audience with an amusing recitation in German dialect, "Dot Lamb Vot Mary Haf Got By."

The musical program was especially good. Mrs. H. L. Baker and William Rehfeld played two excellent piano and violin duets, "Moonlight," and "Among the Valleys of New England," and Mrs. Baker and Miss Ella Funk gave a piano duet, "Hoffman's Grand March," which merited the liberal applause which it received. Miss Mabel Geeser sang two vocal solos very sweetly, the audience enjoying especially the selection, "Stay in Your Own Back Yard."

After a few interesting remarks by H. L. Baker, the balance of the evening was devoted to dancing. Mrs. Baker and Mr. Rehfeld furnishing the music. Both the entertainment and the dance were complimentary and the members and guests of the League enjoyed the evening thoroughly.

The Tuneful Hit in the "Sultan of Sulu."

Manager Henry W. Savage's books show that nearly 400,000 people witnessed George Ade's opera, "The Sultan of Sulu," during its run of three months last spring at Chicago. Out of this number it is estimated that the big tune hit of the merry satire was the song, "Since I First Met You." The song seems destined to meet with same success as the now famous "Bumble Bee" in "King Dodo," the Sultan's merry predecessor. It is what is known as a building up number. The Sultan and Henrietta Budd, the American girl who leads Klam a merry chase, first sing it, after which it is taken up in tune by every pair of lovers in the company. By the time the eight pretty divorced wives of the Sultan come on with their soldier lovers singing "Since I First Met You," the number has become a huge burlesque. Encore is said to follow encore until the audience begins to whistle the catchy music. Other musical numbers such as "My Sulu Lulu Lulu" are said to be only a little behind in popularity. There are twenty-four musical numbers in all. The company numbers eighty people and Mr. Savage is said to have given "The Sultan" a most sumptuous production. The principal roles are taken by Frank Moulan, Fred Frear, Templar Saxe, Robert Lett, Maud Lillian Berli, Gertrude Quinlan, Blanche Chapman and Chas. Guiny.

JANESVILLE GIRL WAS MARRIED EAST

Wedding of Miss Jessie Croft and William W. Williams Occurred in Baltimore.

Miss Jessie Croft, of this city, and William W. Williams, formerly of Edgerton, were married at Baltimore, Md., on Tuesday, October 14, the ceremony being solemnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. V. Baugh corner of Tenth and Presbury streets, Walbrook, the bride being a sister of the hostess.

The home was prettily decorated with autumn leaves, potted palms and choice cut flowers. The dining room was aglow with the soft light from pink shaded candelabra and a profusion of pink roses formed the center piece for the table.

The ceremony was celebrated by the Rev. W. D. Forney, pastor of the Walbrook Baptist church, who was unattended by given away by her brother-in-law, Mr. Baugh. She was unattended, attired in a gown of white Paris muslin elaborately trimmed with ribbon and lace and carried a shower bouquet of bride roses. From 6:30 until 11 o'clock a wedding of Mr. and Mrs. Baugh.

Mr. and Mrs. Williams left on an extended wedding trip which will include a visit with relatives and friends in this city and Edgerton. The bride is a daughter of James E. Croft and is a gracious young woman of happy disposition and charming ways. The groom resided in Edgerton until about a year ago when he moved to Baltimore. He is a popular young man in social circles and possesses excellent business ability. Janesville friends will be delighted to greet them and extend congratulations and best wishes. On their return to Baltimore, Mr. and Mrs. Williams will make their home with Mr. and Mrs. Baugh.

LEGAL NOTES

In the municipal court yesterday morning the case of F. Cleary against Grace Whiting was argued, on the papers of a former trial from which of the state of Wisconsin against Willie Marsden, the boy who was accused of robbing a railroad tool house, and has been adjourned from time to time, was adjourned for three weeks more.

Licenses to marry were issued yesterday to Samuel A. Cooper to Anna E. Atwood, both of Janesville; and to J. J. Sweeney of this city, and Mary E. Rely of Chicago.

Yesterday the jury commissioners had a meeting at the court house preparing the lists from which the jurors are to be drawn for the November term of the circuit court. The names will probably not be drawn until next week it not later. The commissioners are A. O. Wilson of this city, Robert More of La Prairie and Edward Hanson of Beloit.

Among the many who were in the city yesterday on legal business were J. P. Cowan, H. W. Childs and L. E. Gettle, of Edgerton; S. O. Osgard of Orfordville; J. P. Dowd, Frank Cleary, C. Rodd, T. D. Woolsey and Ed. Hanson of Beloit; Robert More of La Prairie, and J. P. Towne of Edgerton.

Osteopathy and Heart Trouble

Case No. 2.—Boy, aged 12, had valvular lesion, reflexly causing cardiac asthma and hay fever. Both yielded readily. Under an intermittent course of treatment covering about three months, he became stronger and grew rapidly and is now in splendid health. The original valvular trouble gives him no apparent disturbance, and he is able to do almost as much as other boys without any evil effect. He had no return of the articular rheumatism since he began treatment.

Case No. 3.—Young man (bank clerk), aged 23, Spanish war veteran, contracted valvular heart through attack of rheumatism. Was in continual distress since coming out of service. With the usual symptoms was the pain and pressure in region of heart. He could not make any exertion without suffering from it. He could get no relief from the regular physicians and was about to resign his position.

He came to me for consultation. On examination I found a slight twist in spine at second and fifth dorsal vertebrae and contraction of muscles and tissues in that region. I told him I thought that was a source of irritation reflexly affecting the heart. If this condition was removed it would allay his distress. I set about relaxing the tissues and adjusted the vertebrae. He felt relief from first treatment and continued to improve with each succeeding one, and is now doing his work without discomfort, and is stronger in every way.

This same young man went back to his family physician after several months to be examined for a pension. The physician seemed very much surprised at his condition and asked what he had been doing. The doctor said his recovery was remarkable, and his condition was much better than could have been expected or even anticipated.

In most of these cases the physical signs I found were chiefly depression of upper ribs of left side and muscular contractions along the spine in upper dorsal region, and in some a lateral twist of one or more vertebrae. My opinion is that this condition was brought about by the inflammatory condition of these muscles, etc., were affected reflexly in this way. This condition remained and by interfering with the connecting nerves produced these other symptoms. I know that the removal of these lesions by osteopathic treatment relieved these symptoms, which could not be by any other way.

BUSINESS POINTERS.

All tastes are not alike, but there are few people who do not like neatness both in the store and attendants.

Even a generous use of printer's ink with a reckless use of truth is a poor investment in the long run. If a man had a thing he wanted to sell and never told anyone about it, how would people know he had just what he wanted?

Promptness of service is an important thing; a rush is unavoidable, but don't tolerate a drag.

There are many ways to attract a customer to a store, but the potent factor in making a sale is the merit of the goods.

Just because an advertising medium costs little is no positive sign of a bargain for the money. The man who charges a high price for an article must have some reason for that price. The one who makes a reasonable price for a valuable space will be giving more for the money than the one who charges a low price for a worthless space. In other words, the cost of advertising must be gauged by the worth of it.—Advertising world.

A child three years of age died of drunkenness the other day in New York City. The parents said they had given the child whisky to strengthen him. In his absence he found a bottle of whisky and drank from it, until he fell over in a drunken stupor, from which the physician could not arouse him. That is only one case in several cases of baby drunkards recently noted. The important fact is that alcoholic stimulants quickly develop the alcoholic habit in children. This fact is just as true when the alcohol is disguised as a medicine, a "sarsaparilla" or other "compound." So many medicines contain alcohol, to the same extent that it is contained in beer or whisky, that parents should be cautious what medicines they give their children.

There is absolutely no alcohol, whisky or intoxicant in any form in Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, neither does it contain opium or any other narcotic. It is a blood-making and body-building medicine. It does not make fleshy flesh but good, firm flesh and muscle. It is pleasant to the taste.

"My four year old daughter had suffered from indigestion and bowel trouble from birth," writes Mrs. Lizzie Allen, of Baldmount, Lackawanna Co., Pa. "The treatment given her by home doctors afforded but temporary relief. Last February she was taken with severe pain in the bowels, followed by violent vomiting. She experienced difficulty in passing urine, which, when cool, deposited a milky sediment. I became alarmed from her symptoms and wrote to the World's Dispensary Medical Association of Buffalo, N. Y., receiving in reply a letter, advising the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, together with a special medicine which they sent. This line of treatment I followed for about two months, at the end of which time my child was enjoying good health, and she has had no severe attack of indigestion since."

MARRIAGE VOWS HAPPILY TAKEN

GALBRAITH-RUMRILL NUPTIALS
WERE CELEBRATED TODAY

AT HOME OF BRIDE'S PARENTS

Wedding of Popular Young People
One of the Most Beautiful of the Season.

In the presence of a large company of relatives and friends, Miss Nellie May Rumrill and Alexander Graham Galbraith were happily united in marriage this afternoon. The wedding, which was one of the prettiest of the season, took place at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George H. Rumrill, 152 Linn street.

Over seventy-five guests assembled at the spacious home to witness the happy event which was characterized by perfect appointments and simplicity, but elegance of detail. The guests were received graciously at the door by Miss Christina Galbraith, sister of the groom, Miss Emma Richardson, Chester Morse and John Galbraith, brother of the groom, who officiated as ushers.

Artistic Decorations.
The floral decorations in the home were especially beautiful, being evidence of the artistic taste of Miss Alice Long, who had entire charge of them. The north parlor, where the ceremony was solemnized, was entirely in green and white, roses, smilax and palms making the effective combination. The pretty background for the bride party was arranged between the two large windows. Portieres of luxuriant ropes of smilax were draped back gracefully with great bunches of white roses and palms were banded on either side. Large bouquets of white roses also lent their fragrance and beauty to the scene.

With Roses and Carnations.
Another handsome room was the south parlor which was done effectively in American Beauty roses and palms. The dining room was beautifully decorated with a profusion of pink carnations and lace fern. The refreshments were served in reception style and the uncovered table with its highly polished surface, looked unusually attractive, an immense bunch of pink carnations forming the centerpiece. The chandelier above was prettily decorated with white satin ribbon and ferns, and the sideboard with its burden of carnations and festoons of the lace fern, completed the beauty of the room.

Wedding March.
Promptly at four o'clock the familiar strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march, exquisitely played by the Orpheus mandolin orchestra, stole through the rooms and an expectant such fell on the company as the music announced the approach of the bride party. First came the four ribbon bearers, Miss Christina Galbraith and Mildred Doty and Masters Benjamin Eller and Douglas McKee. The two young girls were dressed in white and their escorts in black.

At The Altar.
Through the ribbon aisles, stretched by the ribbon bearers came the bride, preceded by her maid of honor, Miss Zoe Carrier, of Chicago. At the improvised altar they were met by the groom, attended by his brother, Charles Galbraith, and Rev. J. T. Henderson, pastor of the Presbyterian church, the officiating clergyman.

Rev. Henderson took his place in the bower of green facing the guests and the bride and groom with their attendants stood in front of him with the ribbon bearers forming a circle in the rear. Here the marriage vows were exchanged and the nuptial blessing pronounced, the ring service being used.

Beautiful Gown.
The bride was especially attractive in her handsome gown of white mull over white silk. The gown was elaborately trimmed with tucks and lace insertions and yet was very simple and girlish in effect. She carried a large bouquet of bride's roses. Miss Carrier, the maid of honor, wore a gown of sheer white organdy over pink silk and carried pink roses.

Congratulations and Luncheon.
The extending of sincere congratulations followed the ceremony and then the delicious two course luncheon was served, the guests being waited on very prettily by Misses Alice Harper, Elizabeth McKee, Belle Mae Gregor, Margaret Hamilton, Maude Nicholson, Belle MacLean, Margery Nicholson, Maud Knippenberg and Olive Corneau.

A Charming Bride.
The bride is the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Rumrill and is a charming young woman of happy disposition. Her education was acquired at the Janesville High school and at the Boston Conservatory. She is talented and accomplished, being an artist of rare ability. The many handsome and costly wedding gifts which she received are evidences of the popularity of the happy young couple.

Young Business Man.
The groom is the eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Galbraith and is associated with his father in business. He is one of Janesville's most enterprising young business men and his integrity of character and pleasing social qualities have won for him the high esteem of all who know him.

Will Reside Here.
Mr. and Mrs. Galbraith will leave this evening on a short wedding trip and on their return to the city they will be the guests of the bride's parents until the middle of December when they will go to housekeeping in a pretty home on South Third street. The best wishes of a host of friends attend them.

There were many guests from out of town at the wedding, relatives and friends being present from Chicago, Evansville and Fulton.

CONCERT OPENED LECTURE COURSE

Series of Entertainments Under the Auspices of the Y. M. C. A.

Began Last Evening.

Nearly five hundred people enjoyed the opening attraction on the Y. M. C. A. lecture course at the association building last evening. This year's course was happily introduced with a concert by the Schumann Lady quartet of Chicago. The quartet included Mrs. Ada H. Kidston and Misses Alida C. Lindsay, March R. Loomis and Jennie F. Johnson. Besides selections by the quartet, the program included solos by each of the vocalists, except Mrs. Kidston. Every number, both quartet selections and solos, was enthusiastically received by the delighted audience and many encores were demanded and given.

Miss Elma B. Smith, the reader and impersonator, was easily the favorite with the audience and her every appearance seemed to furnish new pleasure. Several times she was compelled to respond to double encores and although the selections were all along the same line, they were evidently very pleasing to the audience. The entire program gave the best of satisfaction.

Not The Whole Truth.
At a hotel in Niagara an embryo poet wrote, in a conspicuous place some verses derogatory of the beauties of the Falls, and signed the effort with the initials "A. S." A lover of beauty saw the verses and added beneath: "Two-thirds of the truth."

Use for Ugly Women.
When a Chinese girl gets married her attendants are always the oldest and ugliest women to be found in the neighborhood, who are paid to act as foils to her beauty. It is said that some exceptionally ugly old women make their living by acting as professional attendants at weddings.

Sailors and Tuberculosis.
It is probably owing to the wretched sleeping accommodations provided for sailors that 35 per cent of all deaths in German marine hospitals are caused by tuberculosis.

NEW HOUSES ARE NEEDED AT ONCE

SCARCITY OF AVAILABLE RESIDENCES IN THIS CITY.

BUILDING BOOM SURE TO COME

The Opening of New Factories Will Bring Many Families Who Must Find Homes.

That Janesville is about to awake from its recent stagnation, so far as residence building is concerned, is born witness to by the number of new workmen who are seeking, and the greater number who will seek homes in which to live, brought here by the industries which have sprung up with mushroom like rapidity throughout the city. Spring Brook has been especially invaded by the new arrivals, and within a few months some in less time than that, at least three new concerns will call for workmen, most of whom will come from out of the city.

Growing in Magnitude.
Besides that, the old time factories and warehouses are constantly gaining in proportions, and more hands will need to be employed. The New Doty works contemplate an immediate extension, and more workmen will inevitably follow. So small a concern as the Pearl Button factory is outwardly, it is doing a business far out of proportion to its size, and while comparatively few employees are needed that number is many times greater than it was at the outset of the summer.

Factories To Open.
A few more weeks and the last of the machinery will be installed in the Cement Post factory, the drier will be completed and work will be begun. Men will be needed to operate the concern. It is absurd to suppose that the requisite workmen can be secured in Janesville. Is not every building now under way in the city hampered by inability to secure men? Both railroads frequently complain that they are so short-handed that no man can be given a day off except under the most stringent circumstances.

Scarcity Of Workmen.
Every contractor in the city can tell the same tale. The postoffice building has been repeatedly set back in its progress for that reason, and the library had the same difficulties to contend against. Contractor Peters can tell the troubles he had in erecting the Cement Post factory building, and not the least of them was the shortage in workmen.

Doing Immense Business.
In addition to the Cement Post concern, which will call for workmen, the foundations for the Hough Porch Shade factory are rapidly rising and that will mean a large number of workmen called for as soon as it is ready for operation. The company has too big a business to sanction any unnecessary delay in getting to work. At the canning factory, a volume of business is being done which is well nigh incredible, tons of fruit being shipped every day, and with scores of men and women actively engaged, aided by machinery of the highest degree of perfection, only a fractional part of the cargoes which the farmers have to dispose of can be handled.

From Out Of Town.
The Flake Potato company will not bring so many men to the city, but all those who will oversee the mechanical processes will be experts who will be brought to this city from elsewhere. Even the few families involved in that factory would have difficulty in finding homes in the city at present.

Few Empty Houses.
Janesville has had a comparatively stable population, and there have been few houses left vacant by departing residents. The result is that unless a number of buildings are erected at an early date, Janesville will find herself in the same predicament which has affected the Line City for many months, ever since the Fairbanks-Morse concern made their extended additions last spring.

Too Chilly For Tenants.
At this season of the year it would be a cold proposition for the Bower City workmen to be obliged to follow the Line City lead and come out in tents and box cars until the time when a sufficient number of dwellings could be put up to shelter them from the weather. It was regarded almost a joke by some of the Beloit young men who were receiving $3.50 a day to be able to find no place to lay their heads, save a heap of straw in the corner of an empty cattle car, but with the drifting snow blowing through the cracks, and a cruel north-easter whistling in their ears, they would not have found the situation so humorous.

What Is To Be Done.
Meanwhile it is up to Janesville capitalists to do something in anticipation of this inevitable scarcity of dwellings places. Spring Brook offers perhaps the best field for the erection of homes, because in that district land is cheap and its proximity to the places of employment of the incoming workmen is an undeniable point of advantage. Already several newcomers have discovered the scarcity of desirable dwelling places, and it is a question whether Bower City investors will be sufficiently foresighted to see that a supply is ready to meet the great demand when it comes.

YOUNG LIFE IS ENDED BY DEATH

MISS BELLE DOUGLAS ENTERS INTO REST EVERLASTING

AFTER MONTHS OF SUFFERING

She Had Been Ill Since Early Last July with Congestion of the Lungs.

Death's messenger came to Miss Belle Douglas at her home, 55 North Franklin street, last evening at 10:30 o'clock, bringing her release from the suffering which she had borne so patiently and cheerfully during the last summer. Deceased was taken ill early in July with congestion of the lungs and it was known almost from the first that there was little hope of her recovery. Last Saturday she grew worse and failed rapidly until the end came.

Miss Douglas was twenty-five years of age. From early girlhood she had been a member of the Baptist church and of its Christian Endeavor society. She was an especially bright and lovable young woman, her happy disposition winning for her the sincere affection of a large circle of friends. During her last illness she never lost her cheerfulness but fought back the most intense suffering with a brave determination to live. When she realized that the end was approaching she met death with the same sweet courage.

To the mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Douglas, who cared for her devotedly and untiringly, the bereavement comes with crushing sorrow because the companionship between mother and daughter had always been unusually close and their lives seemed consecrated to each other. One brother, W. H. Douglas, is also left to mourn and the bereaved ones have the sympathy of many friends who sorrow with them.

Funeral services will be held from the home, 55 North Franklin street, tomorrow afternoon at three o'clock. The burial will be in Oak Hill cemetery.

TO ORGANIZE A NEW CHURCH

Janesville May Have Another Religious Denomination Soon

There is more than a possibility that Janesville is to have an English Evangelical Lutheran church in the near future. Rev. A. C. Andra, of Chicago, western Sunday school field secretary of the general council of this denomination, is in the city and in his partial canvass has met with sufficient encouragement to warrant the organizing of such a church. Services will be held as soon as suitable quarters can be secured. Rev. Andra's address while in the city will be at the Y. M. C. A. building and he will be pleased to hear from people who are interested.

An effort is being made to secure the Caledonian rooms and services will doubtless be held next Sunday but definite announcement of the time and place will be made later.

TWELVE PERSONS VICTIMS OF FIRE

LOSS IS PLACED AT $500,000

Many of the Employees Reach Window Ledges, Only to Fall Back Into the Seething Furnace or Jump Wide of the Fire Nets.

Chicago, Oct. 22.—Twelve men or more killed, three as many injured and financial loss of $500,000 are the net results of a fire that destroyed six large buildings comprising part of the Corn Products company's plant at West Taylor street and the river.

A furious gale swept huge brands over the city, endangering millions of dollars' worth of property and causing a score of small fires, the subduing of which kept engine companies not at the blaze busy.

The fire, which originated in the corn-crushing and feed-drying department of the extensive plant, was a veritable furnace before it was discovered.

Fall Into Flames.
Thirty-four men were in this building. How many of them were saved is not known. Most of them were on the fifth and sixth floors when the fire started. They took to the windows. Some jumped into life nets, some leaped to death and others were seen falling back into the flame behind them.

Firemen almost lost self-control when they approached from all parts of the city. Five buildings were in flames when the department began the work of saving the city from what seemed a threat of general disaster. Though the principal building of the glucose plant, a thirteen-story structure standing directly east of the burning building, seemed doomed in the face of the terrible force of destruction, it was saved from destruction as though by a miracle.

Entrancing Sight.
From the first to the thirteenth story it was wrapped in flames. Every window on the west side of the structure was alive with fire.

Fifty thousand people watched the imposing spectacle. Watched in by viaducts the blaze was surrounded with miles of elevated standing room, on all of which swarmed the spectators. It was a spectacular show that needed no rehearsing and none in years has drawn so large a crowd of spectators. The flames lit up the sky all over the city and the tides of sparks rolled northward before the wind, menacing factories and office buildings. The burning embers lived in the air for many minutes and the danger of spreading disaster was extreme.

Miss the Fire Nets.
Ten men on the sixth floor stood on the window ledge and then leaped. Six struck the fire net held by the heroic members of engine company No. 5, whose faces and hands were blistered by the intense heat.

Two of the men who jumped from the fifth floor missed the life-saving net. Their strength was boiled out of them by the heat they had been enduring until the net arrived and they dropped helplessly to the ground.

They were picked up for dead and taken to a hospital. All who jumped were injured.

"I saw two men standing on the top floor. I heard them shout," said a fireman, "and then they tumbled backward into the fire."

Every detail of the work for the firemen was perilous. The fire spread from the corn drying room through the boiler-room, with attendant violent explosions. Next the glucose-room, with its oil and dust, went up like a box of tinder. Then the fire enveloped the starch-drying room and from there it leaped to the linseed oil and cake department.

It was an acre of combustible material upon which the flame fed, and to stop its progress until it had spent its force on the buildings which were located in the flat land below the viaducts was absolutely necessary.

To this end was directed every energy, but the task was too great. All these buildings were devoured, the iron work twisting up like slender wire, the walls and floors tumbling in smoking heaps of ruins.

MINERS WILL RESUME WORK

STRIKERS ARE IN HAPPY MOOD

Much Rejoicing in Region Where the Workers Have Made Such a Gallant Fight for Their Rights, Though Many Must Remain Idle.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Oct. 22.—By a unanimous vote the miners' convention adopted a resolution declaring off the anthracite coal strike and providing for the resumption of work in the collieries on Thursday morning at 7 o'clock. The arbitration plan of President Roosevelt was accepted, and all the questions at issue will be placed in the hands of the commission named by the chief executive.

When the news was flashed to the towns and villages down in the valleys and on the mountains of the coal regions the strike-affected inhabitants heaved a sigh of relief. Everywhere there was rejoicing, and in many places the end of the strike was the signal for impromptu town celebrations.

Hope to Give Thanks.

The anthracite coal region, from its largest city—Scranton—down to the lowliest coal patch, has suffered by the conflict, and everyone now looks for better times. While the large army of mine workers and their families, numbering approximately a half million persons, are grateful that work is to be resumed, the strikers have still to learn what their reward will be. President Roosevelt having taken prompt action in calling the arbitrators together for their first meeting on Friday, the miners hope they will know by Thanksgiving day what practical gain they have made.

Vote is Unanimous.

The vote to resume coal mining was a unanimous one and was reached only after a warm debate. The principal objection to accepting the arbitration proposition was that no provision was contained in the scheme to take care of those men who would fall to get back their old positions or would be unable to get any work at all. The engineers and pumpmen got better pay than other classes of mine workers, and they did not wish to run the risk of losing altogether their old places and be compelled to dig coal for a living.

Confidence in Leaders.

This question was argued right up to the time the vote was taken. No one had a definite plan to offer to overcome the objection, and the report of the committee on resolutions, recommending that the strike be declared off and that all issues be placed in the hands of the arbitration commission for decision, was adopted without the question being settled.

A few moments before adjournment, however, a partial solution was reached, when a delegate in the farthest corner of the hall moved that the problem be placed in the hands of the executive boards for solution and his suggestion was adopted.

The principal speech was made by National Secretary-Treasurer W. B. Wilson, who practically spoke for President Mitchell and the national organization. In a strong argument he counseled the men to accept arbitration, the very plan the strikers themselves had offered, return to work, and trust to the President's tribunal to do them justice.

Must Provide for Many.

The question of taking care of all men who will fall to get work immediately will be a serious one for the union. There is no doubt the executive boards will take care of the engineers, firemen and pumpmen, but there will be thousands of other classes of mine workers who will have to be looked after. In some places hundreds will not be able to get work for weeks, and in other localities where the mines are in very bad condition there will be no employment for many workmen for some months. Now that the strike is over, the volume of relief money will decrease, and the local unions will be compelled to call upon the national organization for assistance when the money now in hand runs out.

No More Assessments.

With the close of the great conflict will also end the assessment now being levied on all bituminous mine workers affiliated with the union. The officials who care to talk of the situation feel confident that the national body will come to the assistance and help all those who stood out during the suspension.

WILL MEET FRIDAY.

President Orders Arbitration Board to Convene in Washington.

Washington, Oct. 22.—President Roosevelt, the moment he was notified by telegraph from Wilkesbarre that the anthracite coal miners had voted to submit the grievances over which they have fought for five months to arbitration, called upon the arbitrators appointed by him to meet in Washington on Friday.

The message from President Mitchell conveying the official notification was received by President Roosevelt with great satisfaction, and he at once telegraphed Bishop Spalding, E. E. Clark, Judge George Gray, Brig. Gen. John H. Wilson, E. W. Parker and Thomas E. Watkins to hurry to the capital and begin their investigation on Friday.

Rob Postoffice Safe.

Flemington, N. J., Oct. 22.—Burglars blew open the safe in the postoffice at Flemington and escaped with its contents, consisting of postage stamps, a box of valuable papers belonging to the postmaster, and $50 in money.

BOILER-MAKERS GO ON STRIKE

Men in Wabash Railway Shops at Springfield, Ill., Quit.

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 22.—Boiler-makers in the Wabash shops struck for increased wages, and the machinists are expected to follow. Six weeks ago the men made a demand for increased wages, and President Ramsey took the matter under consideration. Ten days ago, the men say, he asked for a five days' extension of time to consider the proposals of the men, which was granted, and not having received a reply the boiler-makers went out.

Won't "Beg" From Mr. Carnegie.

A heated discussion took place recently at a meeting of the Dover (England) corporation over the proposition to apply to Andrew Carnegie for assistance to establish a public library. Several of the members objected to "begging, cap in hand," and their objection completely defeated the proposition.

OLD LADY BANES

"A H, Dr. Frenchwell, I'm so glad to see you, dear child! It's good of you to come to see me, for I can't go to church. Do you know why I can't go to church? Dear child, I'm that sick and grooved together, and I'm in a heap and can't stand up much."

"You've been away only three months, Dr. Frenchwell, but a many things has happened. Changes has come to all my three sons, Dr. Frenchwell. There's Ned. He's been promoted to a hundred dollars a month; got a fine position in the Hog and Hominy Trust company. The dear lamb! The hog and hominy trust has got a monopoly of pigs' tails. It works them up into sweet pickles, and my little Ned has to see that nobody but his company gets any pigs' tails in its territory. It's hard work, but the dignitaries thinks a heap of Ned. The dignitaries of the trust all had their pictures taken a-settin' on ped-estals in a group, and my Ned he was there among 'em, a-settin' on a ped-estall, too, and he writes me, and he says, 'Ma, it made me feel like a dignitary too.' The dear lamb! He's a credit to the family. And my Ned he's got a sweetheart that writes for newspapers, the dear thing! And she sent me a letter; but, la, I ain't clever enough to answer it!"

"Then there's Billy. You didn't know Billy? The dear thing! Billy's health was always delicate. I think he takes after me. He was always sick bad when he was little, and we used to have to give him brandy and sugar, and after he was a man he kep' on usin' the brandy without the sugar for bad spells, and somehow the bad spells keeps a-comin' oftener and oftener, and he ain't rightly at himself always, the dear child!"

"Three months ago—it was the very day after you left, Dr. Frenchwell—my Billy had one of his bad spells, the dear thing, and he took a little whisky, and, him bein' delicate, a teaspoonful of whisky settin' him off, it went to his head, and he goes into Mrs. Horton's greenhouse, and he smashes every flowerpot in it, from ferns to mornin' glories, the dear child! Then he goes home and goes to sleep. Mrs. Horton, she comes over to Billy's, and she says to his wife Becky: 'I can't stand this, Mrs. Banes. Your husband has ruined my greenhouse. You support him, and I hold you responsible for his actin' up.'"

"How much's it worth?" says Becky, who says, 'I count it at $5, not addin' my distress of mind,' she says. Then Becky says, she says, 'Here's your money, Mrs. Horton, but I'll take it out o' Banes.'"

"And while Billy was layin' there a-sleepin' like an innocent babe, the dear child, his wife Becky, she ties him up with a clothesline, he bein' bad in his head and knowin' nothin', and horsewhips him till she thinks she's took her pay out, he wakin' up blueyed and bellerin' like all Nlagra, the poor."

"CHANGES HAS COME TO ALL MY SONS." "Dear lamb! But he couldn't move hand or foot, and she lays it on to him hot and says:

"You'll smash flowerpots and ferns that don't belong to you for me to pay for ag'in, will you? That's for Mrs. Horton's stag's horn fern, that's for her Philippine mornin' glory and that's for her Lillum auratum lancelollum! And with that big word she lams him tremendous, and he squeals and begs for mercy, the dear child! I can't think of it without sheddin' tears, Dr. Frenchwell. Forgive a mother's feelin's. But he ain't been drunk since!"

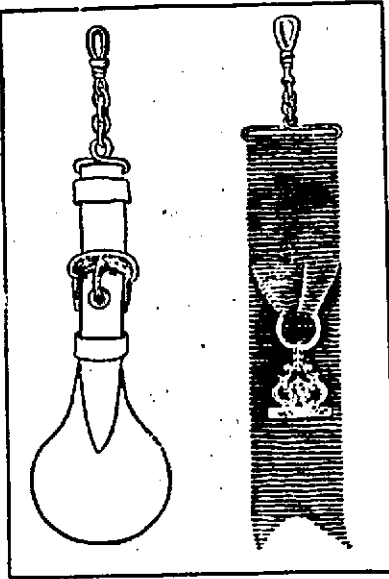

"And my Tom's gone, doctor. They said it was alcoholism or some such farnel name. He was buried from his mother-in-law's, the poor dear, and she hain't got no discernment, doctor. Everybody knows a woman's crazy, that don't put the window blinds down and turn the lookin' glasses face to the wall at a funeral, and she never done neither, she was that mad at Tom. The poor dear never done harm to nobody in his life. He wasn't like Billy, when he was drunk, he was always quiet and gentle as a lamb, the dear thing!"

NEW FAD IN FOBS.

How the Smart Woman Wears Her Watch—Handmade Affairs.

The watch fob has been generally accepted for women's wear. Now it is decreed that the fob shall be made with special reference to the gown with which it is to be worn, and of this froth fad the New Idea Magazine says: The fobs are handmade and need have no ornament save a buckle. Most of the fobs are made of heavy material to match a gown, of velvet or corduroy or of some fabric which makes just the bit of contrast needed to set off the costume. The fob may match the material of the belt or even of the stock. A scrap of goods from a suit is sufficient for a fob.

The fobs which are intended to be finished with an ornament at the lower end are made straight, like a strap. Those that have the buckle only are rounded out into a lobe shape at the bottom. If the material is heavy, all that is needed is a binding of some sort around the edge. Some of the fobs are stitched also, while some materials look much better without the stitching. The binding is often of a contrasting color that gives tone to the fob.

A clever girl made some unique fobs from heavy knitting silk, knitting a close, heavy pattern and bringing the end to a point or widening into a lobe. These fobs she bound to keep from stretching. She also knitted a belt and stock to make a complete set.

Pretty little fobs of taffeta, cut with the lobe end and stitched with self color or one that will contrast prettily with the silk, are used with stitched taffeta belts. Belt and fob are buckled to match with gun metal, brass, silver or nickel.

Smart fobs of heavy black silk ribbon with small seals, made like those worn by gentlemen, are shown by the best jewelers. A pretty example is given in the illustration.

The tiny buckles may be had in plain styles or more elaborately wrought, and ornaments for the end of the fob are shown in a variety of designs. As a rule, they represent some symbol of the owner's taste in the line of outdoor sports.

Tennis and Croquet.

It being the fad of the moment to be domestic is one reason for the revival of tennis and croquet. Consequently on all of the country places that have lately been finished, as well as on the older places, the croquet lawn and the tennis court are receiving much attention. Where there is not a grass court a dirt court is put up, and many people prefer this to the former.

But the most attractive courts are those that are laid out on a lawn, for the green grass seems a necessary accompaniment, especially when women are playing.

The fad of the moment is to have the croquet lawn as near the house as possible, so that spectators can watch it from the veranda or terrace, as the case may be.

Cream of Spinach Soup.

Recipe of the Boston Cooking School Magazine: Cook half a peck of well washed spinach in the water that clings to the leaves, sprinkling it lightly with salt. Chop fine and pass through a puree sieve. For a cup of puree make three cups of white sauce, using milk or milk and white stock as the liquid and half the usual quantity of flour. If the stock has not been flavored with onion, carrot and parsley, cook two slices of these vegetables with a spray of parsley in the butter or scald and cool them in the milk used for the sauce. When ready to serve, add the spinach to the sauce, and when reheated stir in one or two yolks of eggs beaten and diluted with half or a whole cup of cream.

Fads and Fashions.

Raspberry red is a chic color just now. It is pretty in dotted swiss or batiste.

Many fine rows of flouncing appear on evening gowns.

Long, close sleeves are foretold. Pars is launching them.

Geranium red hats and parasols are worn with all white gowns.

The palm leaf fan, transformed by means of flower garlands and soft, full crown of muslin, affords the summer girl an original hat.

The loose sack and full skirt makes a favorite lounging gown.

The loose coat and passamenterie trimmings will figure in furs next season.

Cloth in very light weight, beautifully finished and of most delicate colors, will be made up in the first autumn gowns.

Stained leather dust ruffles for the walking skirt are the latest fad.

Earrings and locket to match are the society girl's last whim.

Third Generation of Lawyers.

Lord Coleridge, K. C., represents the third generation of a notable family of lawyers. His father was lord chief justice and his grandfather also sat upon the bench. The present Lord Coleridge was member of the Attercliffe division from 1885 to 1894, when the death of his father compelled him to take his seat in the upper house. It did not prevent him from practicing at the bar nor has the society of peers affected his radicalism. He is a strenuous humanitarian, which is a characteristic of the Coleridge family.

Put Blame in Wrong Place.

On the line of an Eastern railroad is a glue factory. A woman who is obliged to pass this place frequently always carries with her a bottle of lavender salts. One morning a farmer took the seat opposite her. As the train neared the factory the woman opened her bottle of salts. Soon the whole carriage was filled with the horrible odor of the glue. The old farmer stood it as long as he could, then leaned forward and shouted: "Madam, would you mind putting the cork in that 'ere bottle?"
